

Relationship Development Intervention A New Approach to Autism Communication Strategies

Guest Speaker

Amy Cameron, MS, CCC-SP
Certified RDI Consultant

Monday, February 27, 2012

7:30-9:00 PM

McLean Bible Church, Tysons Campus
Community Room A

This will be an introductory lecture about Relationship Development Intervention. RDI is a relatively new approach to autism intervention. It is unique, individualized autism therapy that enables parents to understand and work with their child and influence development through relationships and real life experiences. Consultants team with parents to educate, support and guide the child's development. This lecture will give parents and professionals new ways to think about communication and working with individuals who have autism.

Amy Cameron, a Speech-Language Pathologist and Certified RDI Consultant, is the owner of Pathways Treatment Center in Raleigh, NC. She works with families from all over the United States and also abroad. Amy is passionate about empowering parents and helping people impacted by autism to achieve an excellent quality of life.
