

John couldn't stand being teased anymore, so he told the school's administrator.

The administrator sat down with the three boys and talked to them about how hurtful and damaging bullying can be.

The boys looked glum.

Then the administrator said, "I will be back in five minutes. I expect you will have talked this out when I come back."

When the administrator came back, the boys were smiling. They were talking and laughing now. It seemed they all loved basketball.

The next day at lunch, the boys got together and gave each other a big smile. Rene said, "Hey guys, why don't you come over to my house after school and we can play some basketball."
"Sure, that would be great!" Steve and John replied.

They gave each other a big high five.

There once were two Grade 8 bullies, Steve and Rene, who were very mean. They have been teasing John, a seventh grader, during D lunch.

Steve said, "John is a stupid seventh grader."

John couldn't stand being teased by Steve and Rene.

"Ewwww, it's John." said Rene.

"Yah, he is stupid and weird." laughed Steve.

John tried ignoring the bullies, and it actually worked...for a few days.

About three days later, Steve had an idea. He started spreading rumors about John.

Steve said, "Hey, Tyler, John is really stupid. He once got four Ds on his report card!"

Now John was really upset. He tried to ignore what was happening, but now his whole table knew random and untrue things about him. John said to himself, "I must be the biggest loser ever!"

He knew he was going to be picked on by everyone now. The next day at lunch, John sat at his table. Everyone was whispering to each other and pointing at John. They repeatedly whispered, "Psssst, John is stupid and weird."

John is stupid and weird." Then Steve whispered something to the group and everyone started laughing. Now John knew he was the biggest loser ever. He didn't want to go to school anymore.
