

World Religions

(an ib elective!)

Are you interested in the purpose of life? The meaning of death? Religions purport to have these answers and many others central to our existence as humanity!

Greater awareness and understanding of world religious beliefs is at the heart of this class. A number of world religions are studied in a systematic, critical, yet sympathetic way. Two religions are studied in greater depth.

The aim is to enhance international and inter-religious understanding with no suggestion of indoctrination or preaching. Yes, there is some writing, and good reading, and a focus on experiences outside the classroom – after school field trips, in particular.

This is a class for everyone; not just ib students!

For further information, please see Jayne Osgood in room E204 (off the art wing.)