Have you ever heard of the National Geography Bee? It is an event, open to students in the 4th – 8th grades, run by the National Geographic Society every year in schools throughout the country. For the first time this school year, Stratford Landing Elementary School will be running a school-wide bee for all 4th through 6th graders. For more information on the National Geography Bee see

<http://www.nationalgeographic.com/geographybee/index.html>

If you have a student who is interested in geography, the club will help them prepare for the bee to be held in December through learning activities and games. Your child does not have to participate in the club in order to participate in the school bee.
