

At least one to two students with AD/HD (attention deficit hyperactivity disorder) can be found in each high school classroom. None of these students learns in the same way; AD/HD is a complex issue that affects students differently from one day to the next and even from one class period to the next.

This program goes on location to the classroom to hear from students and their teachers about specific strategies that help students learn and cope with the inevitable stressors which accompany teenage life. Topics include organizing and activating, time management, memory, focusing and sustaining attention.

“AD/HD Teens Talk: A Training Program for Middle & High School Teachers” is a PowerPoint presentation used in workshops by FCPS staff.

The PowerPoint presentation is online at www.fcps.edu/fairfaxnetwork/adhd/powerpoint/ad\_hd.pdf.
