

Fairfax County Public Schools Hearings Office Annual Report 2016-17 School Year

Executive Summary

Hearings Office Annual Report, 2016-17 School Year

During the 2016-17 school year, school principals and program administrators submitted 660 student disciplinary referrals to the Hearings Office, a 6% increase in Hearings Office referrals compared to the previous school year. An examination of the school-based misconduct resulting in referrals to the Division Superintendent¹ demonstrates that 37% were based primarily upon drug-related violations, 23% upon weapons-related violations, 22% upon assault-related violations, and 18% upon other prohibited conduct. While referrals related to weapons and assaults increased significantly (by 68% and 35% respectively), drug-related referrals decreased by 20%.

An examination of demographic data² revealed that while Hearings Office referrals for elementary and middle school students increased, referrals for high school students decreased by 4%. Furthermore, only approximately one-third of one percent (0.35%) of all Fairfax County Public Schools students were referred to the Hearings Office for disciplinary action: less than one-tenth of one percent (0.06%) of all elementary school students, less than three-quarters of one percent (0.51%) of all middle school students, and less than one percent (0.76%) of all high school students. As was true in previous school years, less than one percent (1%) of students in each of the four largest ethnic/racial subgroups (Asian, Black, Hispanic, and White), were referred to the Hearings Office. However, Black and Hispanic students remain disproportionately referred to the Hearings Office, as do special education students.

Following hearings conducted to consider the 660 disciplinary referrals, the Hearings Office permitted 190 students (29%) to return to their schools, reassigned 39 students (6%) to different regular schools, reassigned 416 students (63%) to alternative educational settings, long-term suspended 14 students (2%), and forwarded only one student (less than 1%) to the School Board with a recommendation for expulsion. The School Board expelled only one student from the Fairfax County Public Schools

¹ This data does not include the two referrals to the Division Superintendent that were based upon students having been convicted of community-based crimes.

² Demographic data is based upon FCPS's membership report for September 2016.
